

Case17

Male client who was suffering from obsessive-compulsive disorder and fixated on his body posture and his teeth. Through out challenging such disorder he also developed self-split.

In the first drawing from left, he drew and described “ the mask that makes him comfortable, he would have that mask entire of day and will take it off when he goes to bed. The mask also prevents his headache too.

The second one he called it "inner voice and named it Joe", this is like armour covering his head and body. The head part and body part designed in a way that makes it easy to take it off or ware it aging.

These artworks took several session yet, the process just ended after identifying the conflict.